THE YEAR BOOK

Tribute to Miss Murray

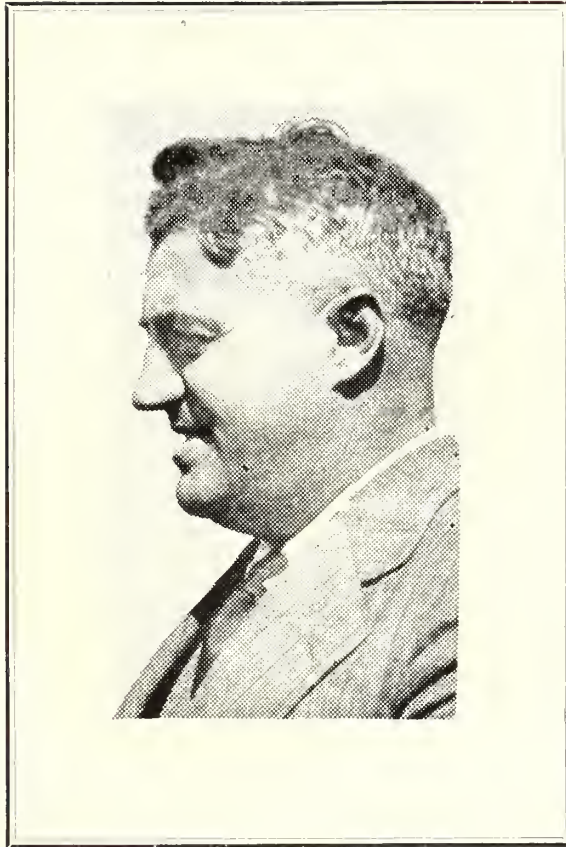

Miss Murray, beloved by students and teachers alike, was suddenly taken from us this past November.

She was both an efficient teacher and, also, an interested, sincere friend.

It is altogether fitting that we, the class of 1946, pay Miss Murray this tribute.

Her merry, twinkling eyes and understanding nature will not soon be forgotten.

DEDICATION

One of youth's best friends left us last summer. In Mr. Ostergren we found not only a wonderful coach but a friend as well. His belief in the youth of A. H. S. inspired all the young people who knew him. It is with deep respect that we, the class of 1946, dedicate our year book to Mr. Ostergren. We feel sure that his influence will live on in the young people.

Appreciation . . .

As our final year at Arlington High School nears an end we, the class of 1946, wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to Mr. Gammons for everything he has done for us. His affable and genial attitude has made us look upon him not only as our principal but also as our friend. We will never forget him for his understanding and cheerful nature, his personal concern in our welfare, and his leadership during these last three years when we have always been able to count on him for his help and guidance.

Foreword

For many students this is the last year of a long and eventful journey through school; others will continue this journey further. Graduation brings to a close an era in our lives, and we now step forward, each going his own way toward his goal in life. Some of us look back over this era with regret, feeling that we have not done our best to benefit by the great advantage offered to us by our school. Others are satisfied, feeling they have done their best and that these school years have not been wasted. However, we shall all have the pleasure of recalling the friendships and good times we have enjoyed. It is to preserve these memories of friendships and good times, that we, the Year Book Committee of the Class of 1946, have produced this book.

Through the Years 1943-1946

The class of 1946, newly arrived and eager for excitement, entered Arlington High School in September, welcomed by Mr. Gammons and the faculty. Before long, these "youngsters" became well-acquainted with homework, teachers, seniors and intricacies of high school life. They were willing and able, and though they were but sophomores, there were many things in which they actively took part.

With their help, not only the Red Cross collection went over the top, but the War Bond and Stamp Drive proceeds exceeded previous years. The auction, with its autographed football and baby pictures, netted more than $3,000.00, and also provided many laughs for all concerned.

The sophomore year of the class of '46 was, unfortunately, a war year. Many of its senior class of boys marched to war. With this deficiency of manpower, the football team, though fighting to the end, bowed to a very powerful Melrose team to the score of 14 to 0. Recovering from the effects of the combination of that and report cards, the class of 1946 looked forward hopefully to the Christmas vacation.

The year 1944 started with a bang! The popular "Hardy Rec" opened under a joint committee composed of the Auxiliary Police and high school pupils. It was a favorite from the start. At the end of each week you can see the classmates getting together at the coke bar to talk over the recent happenings.

Members of the Dramatic Club, as is their annual custom, put on a play, this year entitled "Junior Miss." It was a clever reproduction of the now famous Broadway play and moving picture of the same name. In spite of the fact that this play touched upon the faults of the younger generation, the audience laughed long and heartily at Barbara Manley and Carol Lo-Cascio in the leading roles.

Something new in the way of musical entertainment was presented by the Gilbert and Sullivan Club and the music departments. It was called "The Blue Star Broadcast," and represented a modern broadcasting station. The two evenings supplied the best in popular and classical music combined with comedy by the student announcers.

Then came the Proms, those gala affairs to which only a few of the select from the sophomore class were invited. But, oh, there would always be next year—providing the much-talked-of and much-dreaded final exams were passed. After studying and cramming, the school body took a deep breath and struggled through. And so, after one year in A. H. S., a more intelligent and sober class began its summer vacation.

The now junior class of '46 returned to school anticipating a not less eventful school year than the one that had just passed. Not many changes had taken place. Henry Toczykowski and James Cavalieri had come to coach football, replacing Mr. Ostergren who had resigned because of bad health. The football team was more successful than in the previous year. The supposedly unbeatable Melrose team was vanquished 13 to 0 by Arlington on a muddy, wet day.

The class of '46 started its second wartime Christmas at Arlington High School. Another War Bond Auction had brought in over $4,000.00 and a clothing drive had been successfully completed. Nevertheless, a tinge of loneliness could be felt at the absence of so many of Arlington High's young sons away, fighting in foreign lands.

Thus was 1945 begun.

The Dramatic Club could be found practicing a new play in the complete secrecy of the old hall. After long weeks of work, the club presented the delightful play "Pride and Prejudice," and again pleased its audience with a splendid production.

In May, the odor of grease, paint and powder filled the air—a result of the Gilbert and Sullivan's newest venture, the operetta, "Pirates of Penzance." The "bevy of beautiful maidens" and the wicked pirates convinced the school that there was talent to spare in the music departments.

The spring of the year proved to be one full of great excitement. The school, so recently saddened by the death of President Roosevelt, rejoiced with an assembly and short vacation, at the defeat of "der Fuehrer" and his axis confederates.

With more hope for the future years, the class of '45 graduated, leaving the class of '46 to its finals and then the coveted position as the senior class of A. H. S.

This great class was gloriously welcomed to its senior class; welcomed by the atomic bomb and the end of the Japanese war. A feeling of hope and happiness pervaded the school. Plans for the gala year of the class of '46 began immediately. Armand was chosen as class photographer, and for weeks proofs were passed from hand to hand in study hall. Class rings were ordered and talk of the pros and cons of a spring Prom could be heard over the table in the lunch room.

The pupils and faculty were grieved by the deaths of two of their beloved teachers—Mr. Ostergren and Miss Murray. However, school life goes on in spite of grief, and plans were continued for the annual war bond auction. The highlight of this year's auction was the shaving off of Mr. Arthur's newly-grown mustache in return for a sizeable bond. The total proceeds were almost exactly as in the previous year, over $4,000.00.

As usual, the football team, headed by all-scholastic George "Brud" Faulkner and Eddie Mahoney, had a very memorable season, though they lost the final hard-fought Melrose game 14 to 6. Moreover, the girls' field hockey team, a group of energetic athletes, headed by Captain Dot Bergstrom, finished their season of seven games undefeated and untied to win the state championship.

At the present moment, the Prom is still a dream yet to come true, the music of "The Mikado" still to be heard. However, the senior year will soon be but a memory.

The class of 1946 will leave Arlington High School's sheltering arms and the guidance of its fine teachers to build a full and happy life in a world at peace.

Year Book Committee

Each of the above students have taken an active part in the writing of this 1946 year book. Barbara Isherwood, our capable editor-in-chief, submitted the foreword, while Claire Ham cleverly related the class history. The boys' sports were covered by Richard Jennings; the girls' sports by Patricia Goguen. Interesting write-ups of the various clubs were donated by Catherine Florencourt. Betty Hill earnestly expressed the class's appreciation to Mr. Gammons, while Virginia Leahy presented the dedication and tribute to Miss Murray, so well liked and respected, who passed away during the early part of our senior year. The other members of the year book committee contributed the individual comments about each student.

Student Council

The Student Council, consisting of ten seniors, six juniors and four sophomores, is elected each year by the A. H. S. students themselves.

During the years of World War II, the Student Council's main function has been the selling of War Bonds and Stamps. Now that the war is over the Student Council has been more active than ever in selling Victory Bonds. In the auction held in the old hall, December 6, 1945, the Student Council auctioned off, to the tune of over $4,000.00, articles varying from Frank Sinatra's autograph to startling baby pictures.

Arlington High School is proud of its Student Council and the splendid work it has done under the guidance of Mrs. Moffatt in every War Bond drive.

Under Miss Mary M. O'Connell's and Mr. Charles R. Campbell's capable guidance and through the work of the officers and contributors, The Chronicle prints such interesting news that the students eagerly await every publication.

Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club always scores a hit! Last year the club presented, under the direction of Mrs. Matthews, Jane Austin's Pride and Prejudice, a sentimental comedy in three acts.

Arthur Alexander, Beatrice Coulouris, Gladys Miles, June Mockel, Alberta Publicover, Peter Sword, and Robert Taddell, of the senior class, had roles in the well-known production.

A scene from the play was presented at the Massachusetts State Festival.

The year before, Junior Miss, a hilarious comedy, by Jerome Chodorou and Joseph Fields, was given by the Dramatic Club, and superbly acted by many of its members.

At the time of going to press, the arrangements for this year's production have not been made.

For a top musical, every time, choose a production of the Gilbert and Sullivan Club.

Last year the club presented The Pirates of Penzance with Paul Dickie, Juanita Spinos, and Gertrude Samson, senior class members, in some of the leads.

Mr. Einzig and the club received many compliments from the attentive audience.

This year the Gilbert and Sullivan Club has chosen The Mikado. Rehearsals so far have shown that another successful Gilbert and Sullivan performance is on its way.

Debating Club

Room 69 was bustling with excitement when the Debating Club opened this season with prospects of a very busy year. Mr. Sexton, the faculty adviser, has arranged some varsity debates for early spring with the neighboring high schools.

As usual, the club will have its Annual Banquet and Dance in May.

Girls' Glee Club

The Girls' Glee Club is well known for its beautiful tone and interpretation. It has sung many times at the school assemblies, as well as at the meetings of the Parent-Teachers' and Women's Clubs.

During the State and New England Music Festivals, the club, under the direction of Miss Wardell, received the highest ratings.

Fine Arts

Since class work does not always permit the student to work out his favorite medium to his own personal satisfaction, the Fine Arts Club was started by Mr. Kenney in order that those students who wished to develop their individual preferences in art might do so. No matter what the student may have in mind—designing, portrait painting, figure composition or any other type of art—he may fully express himself in the Fine Arts Club. The club takes trips to museums and current exhibitions once a month.

Orchestra

What would A. H. S. do without its orchestra? Everyone likes the Christmas Assembly music the best. Some of the engagements of the orchestra are: the Women's Club Concert, The Mikado in the spring, and the Music Festival, which has been revived this year.

Most amazing of all, however, is the fact that over forty-three percent of the orchestra is made up of seniors. Rarely does such a high percentage of seniors occur in the orchestra.

Under the excellent direction of Mr. Einzig, the orchestra always gives outstanding performances.

Periclean Forum

The rather new "Pericleans" have found a place in A. H. S., and is fast becoming one of the most popular clubs. The discussions are very informal and under Miss Wakefield's capable guidance the club has already scheduled a discussion with Belmont.

The "Rec" Committee

Although the actual name of the organization is the Arlington Youth Association, every A. H. S. student affectionately calls it the "Rec." (short for recreational). The Arlington Youth Association sponsors not only the weekly dances at the Town Hall but also the Junior Rifle Club, Magic Club, and Baseball League.

Working under the guidance of the Arlington Auxiliary Police, a committee of A. H. S. students volunteers its time and efforts in running the weekly dances, begun in April, 1944, with a membership of three hundred; today there is a total membership of twelve hundred.

Forgotten Men

Ah! At last the Forgotten Men! Those poor unfortunate individuals who wear their fingers out ringing up your tremendous purchases of a bottle of milk and a straw. When they were first being broken in under the watchful eye of Miss Pennell, I suppose they thought it probably would just be better to forget about the whole thing, but with a little encouragement from the helpful (?) students, they squared their shoulders, wrinkled their foreheads, and with deep concentration stuck their jobs out. What did it matter to them if Susie Senior insisted that the three cents for her cupcake should come from Sally Senior's change, because Sally owed Susie a nickel from the time they went to see Frankenstein. After all, the forgotten men took math and knew very well that five from three left two, and besides the movie was very good, even they had to admit. During that first hectic month they went to sleep, not counting sheep, but counting cupcakes, ice cream and milk heaped on students' trays. Those determined young mathematicians definitely have a complaint against the math department of A. H. S. They would like to know when the students are going to learn that seven nickels do not make twenty-five cents but thirty-five cents and would like the students to know that they are not being "short-changed" when they receive three dimes instead of one quarter and one nickel.

Nevertheless, in spite of these minor difficulties, they passed their basic training and became full-fledged Forgotten Men.

The Cheer Leaders

Through rain, shine, and freezing weather, you could always see red and gray-colored figures jumping up and down through it all. When Faulkner and the team were driving toward the goal, who was there to cheer the boys on? Who did you say? You're right—no one else but the cheer leaders of A. H. S. In every emergency and whenever the team needed encouragement, the cheer leaders were right there on the job with every cheer they knew. Through future years, the seniors of '46 will always look back with fond memories on the school spirit brought out by the A. H. S. cheer leaders.

G. A. A.

What would A. H. S. have done without the G. A. A. when it came to those football rallies before the games? The girls certainly did promote better school spirit, and as for laughs, no one will ever forget the initiation ceremonies through which so many unfortunate A. H. S. girls went. Ann Mansfield's, Lorraine Pierce's, and Jacqueline Anderson's costumes practically caused a riot in the girl's gym, and now we know where the new "spring styles" came from. Besides the initiation ceremony, the girls had a wiener roast and Field Day at Spy Pond. Although Miss O'Neill and Miss McCarthy nearly froze to death, everyone had a wonderful time, and the Field Day was a huge success. Then there were ping-pong tournaments, bowling parties, a picnic at the beach, Play Day, and, of course, the very popular Amateur Show, which is sponsored annually by the G. A. A. The profits went toward better support of girls' athletics. When the seniors of '46 have left, not one of them will ever forget the exciting "doings" of the G. A. A.

Field Hockey

The girls' field hockey team this year had an excellent season, the result being they were Champions, undefeated and untied.

These spirited players were backed by their very capable coach, Miss McCarty, who is noted for her superior teams.

The popular fullback, "Tootsie" Bergstrom, was captain of this victorious team and well deserved the title.

The girls kept their opponents on the defensive throughout the season because of their excellent forward line, spurred on by their outstanding back-field.

Girls' Basketball

This year's veteran basketball team, under the supervision of Miss McCarty and the management of Marcia Donaldson, is headed for certain success.

The promising line-up will consist of the active forwards, Louise McGillivray, Jean Sweeny, and Marjorie McNaney. These players will be backed by a combination chosen from the group made up of Sally Spoffard, Carol Fraser, Alma Ward, Eleanor Beck, and Phil Merrill.

The girls are anxiously anticipating the coming season and with last year's excellent record in mind they are hoping for an even better season and possibly the championship.

Girls' Baseball

The baseball team this spring has ample means of surpassing those of past years.

The team will be under the excellent coaching of Miss McCarty and the efficient managing of Pat Goguen.

As this goes to press the following veteran players will be candidates for the team: vivacious Captain "Ninny" McNaney; Barbara Lake, Eleanor Beck, in charge of bases; "Feather" Collins, "Bessie" Donahue and Louise McGillivray in the field; Sally Spofford, shortstop; and Phil Merrill, catcher. The remaining positions are as yet uncertain.

A. Clancy, L. Thompson; Miss O'Neill, Coach; M. Maxim, J. Carens.

Girls' Tennis

The girls' tennis team, under the efficient coaching of Miss O'Neill, made out very well last spring despite the cancellation of two games.

On the matches in which they participated they showed remarkable and promising talent.

Lorraine Thompson, an outstanding junior, along with the well-known seniors, Audrey Clancy, Kay Fitzgibbon, Verna Black, Midge Maxim and Jane Carens, comprise this successful team.

Because of these enthusiastic players we are assured a promising season.

Basketball

Under the able direction of Coach Henry Toczowski, the 1946 basketball is on the road to an outstanding season. With Captain Bob Alt and Brud Faulkner as guards, Joe Keohane and Bob O'Neill holding the forward positions, with Vin Ciampa at center, the team is prepared to keep their opponents on the defensive. On January 2, the team opened the season by facing Brookline, first of series of fourteen games.

Although handicapped by starting with only two lettermen, Captain Bob Alt and Bob O'Neill, the team hopes to defeat their toughest opponent, Somerville. If the proverb, "Determination breeds success," is true, then our boys are "in."

Indoor Track

The track team, R. Nash, R. Lavery, R. Carey, G. Faulkner, P. Olsen, and Captain John Powell, under the direction of "Doc" McCarthy, shows promise this year. They took their first three, without any difficulty, and are looking forward to equal success at the remainder of the meets. "Doc" says that they look like State Championship material to him. After such a winning start we have confidence that the boys will out run Melrose, their strongest opponent. Bob Carey is manager.

Cross Country

The cross country team, expertly coached by "Doc" McCarthy, successfully began their season by winning the first three meets. Arlington was victor over Andover, Brookline and Winchester.

The members of the team, Captain David Reycroft, R. MacDougall, P. Collins, and J. Wall, cooperated in making these contests a credit to A. H. S. David Reycroft took first place in two of the three meets, coming close to the set record. All in all, the boys are on top, and are looking forward to continued success.

Golf

This year, the Golf Club has been one of the best and most active in the history of A. H. S. Many veterans who had played golf before entering the service returned to A. H. S. to add their skill. More important than the preceding, however, is the fact that the Greater Boston Golf League, which had been discontinued during the war, was re-organized this spring to afford to the members more opportunities to play golf.

Every week during the winter you could see the team practicing conscientiously in the Winchester County Club links or on "driving ranges." Under Mr. Robinson's guidance the Golf Club has reached its goal, being the best team that A. H. S. has ever seen.

Baseball

Arlington High, a known producer of successful baseball teams, has done it again. Starting off with an all veteran squad, coached by Jim Cavalieri, we may well expect to defeat all comers.

The pitching staff has Chet Taylor supported by Danny Farmer. With the correct amount of teamwork they should go to the top of the league. Joe Keohane, Captain Cracker O'Keefe, Barber Coveney, Bob Alt, Bob Lavery, Brud Faulkner, Charlie Kent, and Larry Watson are the right boys to promote this support. This team should prove a strong contender for the Suburban Crown.

Hockey

The A. H. S. hockey team took a flying start in the 1946 season by defeating Stoneham, 3-2, and Melrose 3-1. The veterans, Barber Coveney, Captain Don Sennott, Jim MacCutcheon, Charlie Donahue, Chet Taylor, Dick Hardin, and Kenny Wells, constitute the best team that Arlington has seen for some time. Coveney, Sennott and MacCutcheon led the boys to two victories and have confidence that the next eleven will be equally successful. The return of Coach Charlie Downs inspired the team to further hard-fought victories. Dick Ellis was manager.

Football . . .

The class of '46 saw their football heroes roll up a victorious score of six wins, three losses out of nine hard-fought games this season. Thanks to the brilliant coaching of versatile Coach Henry Toczyłowski; with the assistance of James Cavaleri, we were able to defeat Waltham, Leominster, Weymouth, Chelsea, Cambridge Latin and St. Bernard. We were out-scored but not out-played by Lynn Classical, Malden and our annual opponent, Melrose, at the hard-hitting Thanksgiving game.

Popular Co-Captain George "Brud" Faulkner was chosen for many "All Scholastic Teams," while Co-Captain Edward Mahoney and right half back Robert Lavery, were mentioned for many teams. Many of the outstanding plays were performed by Richie Raia, Bob Alt, Bob Cashman, Bill Sola and Bob Vanni.

Richard Ellis was manager.

Altogether, considering the 1945 football season, in retrospect, Arlington not only maintained its former high standard, but surpassed it.
